ADJUTANT GEN. F. P. PIERPOINT, of West Virginia, was improvised as Assistant Adjutant General to Maj. Gen. Geary, at Gettysburg, on the 4th.

At the St. Clairsville celebration on the Fourth, Judge Cowan, John Patton, Esq., L. Danford and C. L. Poorman, of that place, together with Col. Lockwood, from this side, made speeches. The Chronicle says there never was such a Fourth of July celebration in Eastern Ohio, to the best of the editor's knowledge.

The heart of the country will receive with satisfaction the news that four of the Washington City assassins are to be hung to-day. This is an earnest that will do good, and assure to people that punishment is not wholly lost sight of.

THE CAPTURE OF JEFF. DAVIS—THE LATEST ACCOUNT.—Until the rebel President is finally disposed of, and perhaps long afterwards, the circumstances attending his capture will continue to be written about, and the public will read and read until all kinds of opinions are formed as to the manner of manhood shown by the fallen official in the closing scenes of his eventful career.

Some rebel officer who left Richmond with the Presidential party on the eve of the evacuation, and who traveled with Davis most of the time, has written out for the N. Y. Herald a lengthy account of the grand begonia, including the capture in Georgia. There is no reason to suppose that his story may not be substantially true. It reads like a pretty straightforward narrative, and from the dates, references and incidents given, may be accepted as a basis for public opinion hereafter—at least until something more reliable makes its appearance. The following extract is the concluding portion of the rebel officer's narrative:

At last he got information that his own wife and family were in danger from the assaults of military marauders. Mrs. Davis, with her three children, and accompanied by her sister, Miss Howell, had a narrow escape of her own, about twenty or thirty miles from her husband's party. She was very anxious to go her own way, and be no embarrassment to him. She felt equal to the task of protecting herself from reckless Confederates, and felt sure of avoiding federalists. But, no sooner did she ascertain that she was in danger, than two gangs had concocted a scheme to seize all her trunks under the impression that she carried the rebel gold, than he resolved, at all hazards, to go to her rescue. It was a fond husband's, a fond father's infatuation. No remonstrance availed. He set out and rode eighteen miles to meet the object of his love and solicitude. He met them, and the first to rebuke him for his excess of fondness was the anxious wife and mother. A tent or two was already pitched, and he, weary to exhaustion, went to sleep, intending to retrace his steps before morning. Had he not gone to assure himself of his wife's safety, and had he not the rebel marauders anticipated while there, Colonel Pritchard would be without the honor of capturing him, for nothing was easier than his escape, as Breckinridge and Wood and the writer of this know, and by meeting no interruption, these men have proved. Their immunity might have been his.

But Davis ran his risks and took his chances, fully conscious of imminent danger, yet powerless from physical weariness, to do all he designed to do against the danger. When the musket firing was heard in the morning, at "dim gray dawn," it was supposed to be between the rebel marauders and Mrs. Davis' few camp followers. Under this impression he hurriedly put on his boots and prepared to go out for the purpose of interfering, saying: "They will at least as yet respect me."

As he got to the tent door this hastily equipped, and with this good intention of preventing an effusion of blood by an appeal in the name of a fading but not wholly faded authority, he saw a few cavalry ride up the road and deploy in front.

"Ha, federalists!" was his exclamation. "Then you are captured," cried Mrs. Davis with content.

In a moment she caught an idea—a woman's idea, and as quickly as women in an emergency execute their designs, it was done. He slept in a wrapper—a loose one. It was yet around him. This she fastened over her head, and then bidding him to get up, she urged him to go to the spring, a short distance off, where his horses and arms were. Strange as it may seem, there was not even a pistol in the wrapper. Davis felt that his only course was to reach his horse and arms, and comply. As he was leaving the door, followed by a servant with a water bucket, Miss Howell threw a sheet over his head. There was no time to remove it without exposure and embarrassment, and as he had not far to go he ran the chance exactly as it was devised for him. In these two articles consisted the woman's attire, of which so much nonsense has been spoken or written, and under these circumstances and in this way was his escape. No bonnet, no gown, no petticoats, no corset, no nothing of all these. And what there was depended to be excusable under ordinary circumstances, and perfectly natural.

But it was too late for any effort to reach his horses, and the Confederate President was at last a prisoner in the hands of the United States.

What attended the capture you have heard in all its forms, and what followed it too; but many things remain to be told and corrected, touching that and other events germane to it.

The foolish King of Prussia is determined to learn nothing. With the upper house of his Parliament subservient to him, he flatters himself that he can utterly disregard what the lower house desires. Once he has dissolved the Parliament in the hope that the people would elect a lower house more favorable to him. But the present house is, we think, more strongly opposed to him than the last. It is a wonder that open collision has not before now taken place. We do not know how long the government can be conducted on the present plan.

WHEELING, W. VA., July 5.
Editors Intelligencer:

Now that the terrible rebellion, that will stand in history without a rival, has been put down, and the people throughout the length and breadth of the land are exclaiming, "on earth peace, and good will to men;" now that we are returning to our homes and the dear ones we love so well, and are commencing to the future historian the great labor of gathering up the historical reminiscences of those who have acted well their part during the black days of the republic, it is eminently fit that each be placed correctly upon the home record. Having been a participant in the late cavalry campaign under Gen. Sheridan, that resulted in the fall of Richmond, and the destruction of Lee's army, and having had a good opportunity to know the brave men placed upon the services of Gen. Custer, by Gen. Sheridan and Custer, it has occurred to my mind that the publication of the accompanying papers would be but a deserving compliment to Gen. Custer upon his retirement to civil life. Entertaining this conviction, I take pleasure in submitting them to an appreciative public.

AN OFFICER OF THE 3RD BRIGADE.

HEAD QRS 3RD CAV. DIV.,
APPOMATTOX COURT HOUSE,
April 9, 1865.

Col. Capehart, Comdg 3d Brigade,
Col. I accordance with orders from Maj. Gen. Sheridan I have been placed in command of the 1st and 3d Divisions of Cavalry. You will, upon receipt of this order, assume command of the 3d Cavalry Division.

Very respectfully,
G. W. CUSTER,
Brevet Major Genl.

HEADQUARTERS 3D CAV. DIVISION,
MIDDLE MILITARY DIVISION,
April 18th, 1865.

Hon. E. M. Stanton, Sec'y of War:

I have the honor to submit the following recommendation for the promotions of officers of my command:

First, That Col. H. Capehart, 1st Virginia Cavalry, commanding 3d brigade of this division, be promoted to the full rank of Brigadier General U. S. Vols., to date from March 1st, 1865.

Col. Capehart, by his skill in handling his brigade, and in the personal gallantry displayed in the engagement at Petersburg, Crawford on the 1st of March, by which the enemy were driven with heavy loss from the burning bridge, and the way opened before us in our march up the valley, was the first to inaugurate that series of successes which characterized our movements to the James river. At Waynesboro he bore a leading part in effecting the rout and capture of Early's forces. In the late campaign from Petersburg to Appomattox, Col. H. Capehart has been second to none in the display of marked ability, untiring zeal and energy, as well as unsurpassed personal gallantry and daring. At Dinwiddie C. H. he was particularly conspicuous. At Five Forks I attribute our success mainly due to the united efforts of Col. Capehart and Wells. While at Sailors' creek the brunt of the engagement was borne by Col. Capehart's brigade, which, in every charge, was led by its gallant commander.

At Appomattox Station, the 8th Inst., Col. Capehart again rendered himself conspicuous by his skill and bravery, and to him is much due for the successful termination of that obstinate engagement, which resulted in our capturing twenty-four (24) pieces of artillery, besides a large number of prisoners, wagons, &c., to say nothing of the influence which this engagement had upon deciding the fortunes of the following day.

I earnestly trust this recommendation will be favorably considered by you.

G. A. CUSTER,
Brevet Major General.

J. L. GREEN, A. A. General.

HEADQUARTERS 3D BRIGADE,
3D CAVALRY DIVISION, WHEELING, WEST VA., July 4th, 1865.

General Order No. 2.

Officers and soldiers of the 3d Brigade, 3d Cavalry Division: Your work is accomplished, and we are now about to separate. Peace reigns throughout the continent of America, and the Union of the States is preserved in more than its original integrity. The courage and devotion displayed by you in defence of your country through a perilous war of four years have won you a name and fame that is imperishable.

You have annihilated a power which attempted your enslavement, and with your blood washed out the stain of slavery from our national escutcheon.

Thankful to Almighty God for his protecting care, let us ever cherish a grateful remembrance of our fallen comrades. May each of you become as distinguished a citizen as you now are soldiers, and ever guard, you test and defend the principles of universal freedom.

H. CAPEHART,
Col. 1st W. Va. Cav. and Brevet Brig. Genl.
G. A. CUSTER, Capt. and A. A. A. Genl.

CHARLES MASON, Chairman of the Democratic Association at Washington, is about to issue one of his periodical addresses to the Democratic party, which will take strong ground against negro suffrage and declare entire confidence in the administration of President Johnson, ending with this eulogium:

"It is hardly a superstitious fancy which regards him as having been specially ordained for this great and glorious mission. The designs of Heaven begin now to be visible throughout. At the head of the reconciled and reunited Democracy of the two sections, Andrew Johnson is, we believe, destined to rise and restore those cherished institutions which have been so fearfully shattered and seemingly overturned, and to receive the undying gratitude of a reunited country and the benediction of all future ages. Be it ours to share in the consciousness of having contributed to the same result."

Andrew Johnson is pretty certain to be sustained by the reunited Democracy of the two sections, but the Democracy which Andrew Johnson adheres to and that which Mason represents are very different affairs, just as unlike as the genuine and the bogus.

The correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, writing from the Illinois State Capital, throws out some not very laudable hints as to new political combinations, thus:

"I have reason to know that Mr. Lincoln was perfecting his programme and policy previous to his death, and also that it was of such a character as would have alienated a large portion of his own party from him, and that other hand secured him the support of a large mass of the opposition. It may be that the full promulgation of Presidential Johnson's policy will produce a similar result. In fact, I notice indications already that it inevitably must, but not, probably, to the extent of Mr.

Lincoln's. Still there will, no doubt, be some disaffection on the part of the more impracticable men of the country; and this disaffection will have to be made good by the adhesion of the more practicable."

The question of negro suffrage is to be the leading one in the State politics of Louisiana, and the canvass is already opening with much warmth. It must almost necessarily become an early question in every reconstructed State.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS.

HEARTRENDING CALAMITY.

One Citizen Killed and Another Wounded.

At about nine o'clock last night our citizens were shocked by one of the most startling catastrophes that has befallen this community for many years, resulting in the death of Mr. John List, one of our most prominent and respected citizens, and in the wounding of Major McPhail, Chief Paymaster of the Department. These gentlemen, in company with several citizens, were sitting in front of the store-room of Messrs. Matthews & List, and while thus situated, a soldier, pursued by two members of the provost guard, ran down Quincy street and crossed Main, directing his course to the store where these gentlemen were sitting. When the pursuers reached Main street, some one gave the order to fire, which order was obeyed by one member of the provost guard. The ball took effect in the thigh of Mr. List, cutting one of the arteries.

After receiving the wound he walked a few steps and fell, when he was carried into the counting room of Matthews & Co. Medical aid was called, but before it arrived the loss of blood had been so great that all efforts proved unavailing, and he expired within an hour after the fatal shot was fired. The same ball struck Major McPhail on the foot, inflicting a painful but not dangerous wound. The distress of the afflicted relatives of the deceased can hardly be imagined. We hope never to see another such heart-rending scene—pen cannot picture it.

It is time that some measures were adopted to stop the lawlessness and recklessness which runs riot in the city, and which has resulted in an irreparable calamity.

BOARD OF SCHOOL COMMISSIONERS.—An adjourned meeting of the Board of School Commissioners for the district of Wheeling, was held yesterday evening at the Council Chamber of the second branch. In the absence of the President Mr. A. J. Sweeney was called to the chair. The committee appointed at the first meeting not being prepared to report, were granted further time.

The Clerk of the board submitted a statement showing the assessment of real and personal property for the years 1864 and '65, in the townships embraced within the city district.

The total valuation for 1865, was.....$8,214,437.00
For 1864 it was.....$7,442,181.00

Decrease of valuation.....$772,256.00

He also reported the condition of the school fund, as follows:

Amount of funds in hands of
Treasurer.....$5,000.00
Amount in hands of Sheriffs.....3,000.00
State and Library fund.....5,000.00
Amount of tax on assessments for 1865, at 40 cents.....21,708.72

Total for 1865.....$34,708.72

On motion, the election of District Superintendent was postponed until the next meeting of the Board.

On motion, a committee of five, of which Mr. Sweeney was to be chairman, was appointed to draft rules and by laws for the government of the Board.

On motion, the commissioners from the different townships were instructed to examine the accounts of the different schools, and to issue their warrants to the treasurer for any balances due the teachers as salary for the last quarter.

On motion, the Clerk of the Board was instructed to draw his warrant on the treasurer for the sum of $20 in favor of each of the three persons comprising the Board of Examiners for the past year.

Adjourned.

SOLDIER BEATEN.—An affray occurred yesterday evening on Market street, near the corner of Quincy, in which a soldier was very severely beaten by a party of five men and boys, said to be soldiers in citizens' dress. After beating the man they fled; the provost guard, however, succeeded in capturing one of them. He was committed to the Athenaeum. We did not learn the names of any of the parties, as they all seemed to be strangers to those who witnessed the attack.

DISTURBANCE IN BRIDGEPORT.—We are informed that last night demonstrations of a riotous character were freely indulged in at Bridgeport, Ohio. It is reported that soldiers were engaged in it, but owing to the lateness of the hour at which we received the information we cannot give particulars or vouch for the truth of the report.
